

Dear Isolation

Dear isolation,
You've really got a hold on me
And I'm trying to keep my sanity
But it's let me really hard to see
Don't' talk about a past time
Cause you don't know what it means
Hang on to the time that you have left
Cause soon I'm going to break free

Dear isolation,
You've really made a mess of things
I know you had good intentions
But it's left me quite a sting
You've overstayed your welcome
I don't need you anymore
So pack up your things
Grab your shoes
And walk out my front door

It's clear to me that things have changed
The worlds been covered in a cloud of grey
I know that you're only half the blame
I just can't be alone
I've got some friends to help me sort that out
It won't' be long before things begin to change

Dear isolation,
Thank you for your help now
You've made me as stronger person
I'm feeling better
Somehow
You showed me all the reason
That maybe I should stick around
I don't feel so lonely anymore
And I don't have to be so down

Now it seems to me that things have changed
I've met someone
You should see her face
The way she smiles just makes it a sunny day
And you're the reason why, my friend
Because of you I didn't feel so scared
It won't be long before things begin to change

Dear isolation,
I'm sorry for the way I treated you
I've realized now you've had my back
Now I'm trying something new
But I'm afraid we must part ways now
Cause someone else is gonna need you soon
But if I'm ever feeling low again
You'll know just what to do.
